 begin next Monday, the 22d.
 The village teachers are as follows: Principal of the high school—Yvonne M. Whitman; sub-master, Percival E. Hathaway; assistant, Janet C. Stephens.
 Ninth grade—Lucas E. Sanborn.
 Eighth—Winifred E. Ladd.
 Seventh—Jessie L. Dinsmore.
 Sixth—Alice M. Knodes.

 ner, Sadie E. Millett.
 In the high school room Monday afternoon there will be an examination of pupils who have not the certificate of entrance to the high school, and of candidates for advanced training.
 The water service that has been put in the basement, while not expensive for work of such quality, has cost too much to be abused or carelessly used. New rules must be enforced to prevent damage to this part of the school property, and parents are urged to assist the teachers in enforcing these rules. If, on account of any weakness or illness, a child must for a time be allowed exceptional privileges, the teacher should be notified by the parent of his condition.
 The new primary school established in the academy building, so called, revivifies the old district lines in the village.
 By vote of the S. S. committee: "Children of the first and second grades living westerly of the line of Cottage street will attend the upper primary; those of the same grades living between the lines of Cottage and Paris streets, the middle primary (in the academy building), and those of these grades living below the line of Paris street will attend the lower primary school.

Ernest C. Witham, a sophomore in Tufts College, a son of A. N. Witham, M. D. of Cumberland Mill, with his sister Vera visited their grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Witham, Sept. 14.

S. W. Potter of West Bethel was in town, Tuesday, attending probate court.
 He drew the will of Mrs. Ossina Pike in 1884 and also witnessed it, hence Mr.
 Potter was here to prove the will.

Wm. M. Brooks of Winchester, Mass., is visiting his sister, Mrs. A. H. Witham.
 Mr. Brooks is looking finely. Undoubtedly he has taught more terms of school than any other man in the State.

M. W. Sampson and A. L. Cook struck last Monday, and brought in 8 partridges and 2 woodcock. S. H. Walcott drove the team for them. G. R. Stephenson and Kenneth Gurney have not yet reported.

Ten and one-half miles and one hundred and twenty-six feet is the distance that S. W. Libby cut the bushes by the roadside in Albany. Reduce this down to bushes only and it is 9 1/2 miles of continuous brush he cut.

John A. Woodman visited North Fryeburg last week. His father-in-law, P. C.
 Guptill, is very feeble but may live for some time. Mr. Guptill has sold his farm to Lorenzo Bryant who will move on to it Nov. 1st. Mr. Guptill will hire rent near by.

Irving Merrill of Amesbury, Mass., visited his father, S. W. Merrill, of North West Norway this week. Some ten years ago, Irving commenced to learn the printers trade with us. He didn't take kindly to it and quit to go to railroading. He is employed by the B & M Ry. Co., and is fireman and runs from Amesbury to Boston. He has been on this job for several years and is liking it much better than printing.

S. W. Libby of Albany brings in some old ADVERTISERS printed in 1859 and 1860. The late Geo. W. Millett was then the editor and proprietor. These old papers are conspicuous for the absence of local news and local advertising. A copy of Chase's Chronicle of June 24, 1876, is among the papers. It was then the "poor man's paper"—good easy reading and was in a most flourishing condition. It has long since ceased to be printed. It has long since ceased to be printed. It has long since ceased to be printed.

Charles E. Warren of Fryeburg was in town the first of the week.
 Stella Pike has presented the Norway Public Library with a fine picture of "Lougheew in His Library."

James Richardson and family of Milan N. H., have been visiting at Mrs. E. H.
 Noble's, also her son, Oscar I. Morse and wife of Boston and Mr. and Mrs.
 Hall L. West, Upton, Me.

J. Freeland Bolster got the first fur of the season last week. He killed a big dog fox near Horse Hill. Of course the fur isn't prime as yet but Fred is after the fun and is training down his dog to the proper weight.

Norway Municipal Court.
 Saturday, A. P. Bassett went to Oxford, arrested Edward McDonald and Owen Reynolds for intoxication, and they were arraigned before the Judge.
 McDonald was found guilty and a fine and costs of $18.54 was imposed. Reynolds was not held on intoxication charge because of a flaw in the warrant, but the evidence warranted holding him on charge of adultery and he was bound over to the October term of Court.
 He furnished sureties in the sum of $200.
 Monday night, F. J. Elwell was arrested by Bassett on a charge of selling intoxicants, was found guilty and fined Geo. A. Cole says he knew it was to rain, last Saturday. He mowed the sec-that field sixty-six times and got the hay wet every time.
